DOCTOR OF PHILOSOPHY – HISTORY – 2020-21

In addition to departmental requirements, candidates for graduate degrees must fulfill University requirements described in the “Graduate Education” section of the UCSB General Catalog.

Students in the doctoral program must enroll for at least six regular academic quarters on the UCSB campus pursuing a program of full-time study (12 units each quarter) and research. Three consecutive quarters of this residency must be completed in regular session before advancement to candidacy.

*Students must complete 24 units of history research seminars, 8 units of which can be taken from the M.A. requirements. Check with the graduate program assistant for credited seminars. Students must take at least one graduate course in each of the four areas presented for examination (research seminars and courses taken while in the M.A. program satisfy this requirement), and a graduate course in historiography (History 202) if such a course has not been taken prior to admission to the doctoral program. Doctoral students in American history must take History 292A-B-C, in addition to the 24 units of research seminars. Doctoral Students with History of Science as the primary (first or second) examination field must take the core reading seminars (History 201HS and 201HT); the 277A/B research seminar (satisfies 8 of the 24-unit research seminar requirement); and one additional reading seminar offered by a HOS faculty member other than the student’s 201HS, 201HT, or 277A/B instructors. Students with History of Science as the third examination field must take one of the core reading seminars (History 201HS or 201HT) and one additional seminar (reading or research) from a HOS faculty member. All students will be required to qualify for and (subject to the availability of funds) hold a teaching assistantship or a research assistantship as part of the preparation for the Ph.D. degree.
 Time-to-Degree: 5 years to advance to candidacy, 8 years to complete the Ph.D.*

FOREIGN LANGUAGE REQUIREMENT*
The department requires candidates for advanced degrees to demonstrate reading competence in at least one foreign language. The requirement may be satisfied in one of the following ways:
<input type="checkbox"/> A score on a UCSB foreign language department's undergraduate placement exam sufficient to place the student out of the sixth quarter of that department's undergraduate language sequence (the department recommends that students unsure of their proficiency try this option first)
<input type="checkbox"/> A grade of B+ or higher in a sixth quarter (or higher) undergraduate foreign language course taken at UCSB
<input type="checkbox"/> A grade of B+ or higher in the second term of a graduate reading knowledge course at UCSB
<input type="checkbox"/> Passing a two-hour written translation examination administered by the department's foreign language committee.
Requirement satisfied on (date/quarter): _____

*Students should plan to satisfy the departmental foreign language requirement as soon as possible, but no later than the end of the second year in the doctoral program. No student will be allowed to take the general examinations for the Ph.D. without having completed the departmental language requirement, as well as any additional language requirements required by the major professor.

GENERAL EXAMINATIONS
Upon satisfying the unit and foreign language requirements, students will be eligible to take their general examinations. In consultation with their supervisors, candidates will form an Examination Committee which will supervise preparation in four fields of study—three within the department and a fourth which may be either a cognate field outside the department or a fourth history field in a geographical region different from that of the other three fields. The four fields are: <ol style="list-style-type: none"> 1. The major field, taken under the student's major professor. It will be in that professor's special field, or, with the approval of the graduate committee, in a closely related field. The major field ordinarily provides the intellectual basis for the dissertation and the student's later emphasis in teaching and research, and the student is expected to achieve depth and breadth of scholarly sophistication and mastery in this field. 2. The general field is the field within which the student's major field is located (e.g., U.S. history is the general field if the major field is U.S. diplomatic history). The student is expected to show breadth and perspective in this field in order to set his or her specialty within its encompassing framework and to be able to teach survey courses. 3. The outside field in history, chosen from a second of the department's Ph.D. fields. This field may be either specialized (as in 1 above) or general (as in 2), depending on the mutual decision of the student, the major professor, and the supervisor of the outside field. This requirement affords the student, for comparative purposes, a deep encounter with the history of a period or culture distinct from that studied in Fields 1 and 2 and also enables the student to offer survey courses in this field. 4A. A cognate field outside the discipline of history is chosen from within another academic department. This field should strengthen the student's grasp of Field 1 and be comparable in depth and richness to Fields 2 and 3. 4B. A fourth history field which is outside the geographical/cultural area of the other history fields may be substituted for the cognate field. For European and U.S. historians, the field should be non-European and non-U.S. history, respectively. Examples are Africa, Middle East, East Asia, and Latin America. Alternatively, special topics may be chosen, such as environmental history, women's history, Native American history, military history and religious history. Three of the field examinations will be written, with the specific three fields determined by the examination committee and approved by the director of graduate studies. Passing grades are B and above (B- fails). Students may retake the examination one time in an effort to improve the result. If students elect to retake the exam, they must retake the entire exam. A student must obtain approval from the Director of Graduate Study to take the exam a third time. The three written examinations in history must all be completed within a period of one month from the date of the first examination. Each of these examinations will be of three hours' duration. Within one week of passing the last of these examinations, the student must take an oral examination in all four fields. The minimum time allotted for this examination is two hours, but the time period may be extended as warranted by the four examiners.

ADVANCEMENT TO CANDIDACY/DISSERTATION

Advancement to Candidacy: After taking doctoral examinations, the candidate must submit a dissertation prospectus before being advanced to candidacy. These prospectuses may vary, but usually are between 15-30 pages in length and are expected to demonstrate the potential scholarly value of the proposed topic and mastery of pertinent literature related to the topic. The prospectus must be approved by the doctoral committee before the student is advanced to candidacy.

Dissertation: The doctoral dissertation must be an original work of historical research in the field of the candidate's specialization. It must be in clear prose, have intellectual depth, and demonstrate a mastery of historical methodology. The dissertation will be supervised by a dissertation committee which may (but need not) be composed of the same faculty as the examination committee. This committee will be made up of three UC Academic Senate faculty members, at least two of whom must be History faculty or faculty affiliated with the department.

When the dissertation is completed, the candidate will normally conduct an oral defense of approximately two hours in length before the dissertation committee. The defense may be waived at the discretion of the doctoral committee.
